COLLEGE
University

in the City of NEW YORK

"DURING the past two years the University has been under the able direction of Dr. Frank D. Fackenthal as Acting President and the adjustments necessary to meet the unusual educational demands of the post-war period have been arranged by him in full conformity with the tradition and standing of the University and to the enhancement of its prestige."

FREDERICK COYKENDALL, *President of the

7he dedication of the 1949 Mortarboard is of a novel and individual essence not only in that it is ours alone to give but also that it takes on a dual nature—

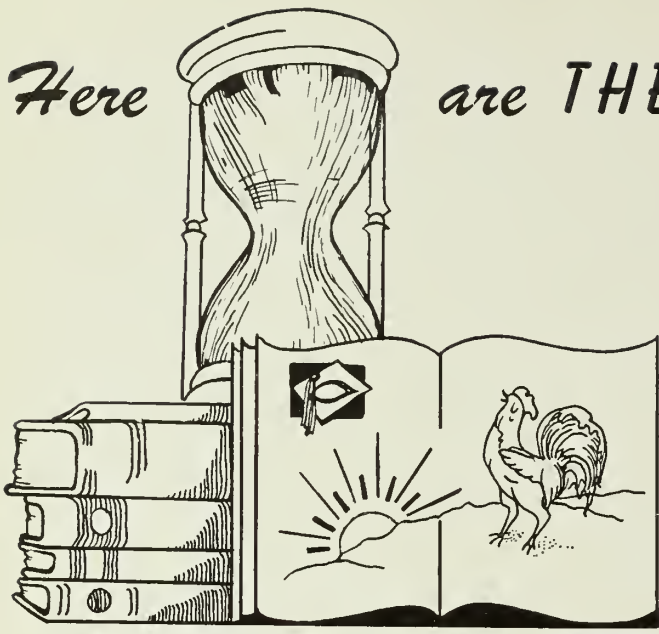

To Mrs. McIntosh, our new friend and adviser, our elder sister, we pledge ourselves.

To Dean McIntosh, the scholar and educator, whose giant purpose in life is to “bridge that gap between the academic world and living,” we lend our support.

That she, as an individual, personifies the balance of human and educational values on which we focus, is apparent. Proudly, and with a profound sense of aptness, we dedicate our book to Mrs. Rustin Carey McIntosh, Dean of Barnard College.

Here are THE ESSENTIALS-

Time, our most natural gift, remains as elusive as it does eternal. Man, having lost it, is incapable of renewing it. It is his measure of infinity. In limiting the span of his effort, it inspires greater achievements. Time is a solar wonder: a universal paradox.

Here at Barnard, Time belongs to us, not we to Time. How we use it, in work and play, is our constant appraisal of its value. How we bear its responsibilities is an index of our worth. That its passing shall have been stimulating to our intellectual selves, rewarding to our social selves, and satisfying to our ethical values, is a recognition of adult responsibility. To find in Time freedom rather than bondage is a mark of maturity.

To weave our pattern of life with strands of each of these values is our purpose. That this pattern shall lead us to a sense of integration is our goal. This goal, toward which we strive, is our inspiration and our guide.

MORNING

The wearying trek from subway, bus and elevator through the gates on the way to class, a hurried exchange of greetings on Jake, a quick glance at Student Mail, that last cigarette in the Jungle, those three overwhelming flights of stairs—Morning yawns for the last time and begins to motion toward Noon.

Morning Glories

"Can't start without coffee!"

Survival of the fittest.

Nine o'clock and all is a-chatter with essential verbal communications. Now those twenty pages that were left unread last night are hastily scanned, and notes are avidly reviewed in anticipation of a "favorite" early morning quiz. "Did you remember to fill your pen?" "Bring your tennis racquet?" "Another meeting at twelve for today!" Rain or shine, there are always nine o'clock classes!

"See you at twelve, dear?"

The 8:55 arisers.

Food and fun for everyone.

Deepest concentration and most careful planning are generated by the seasonal schedules. Fitting your favorite activity into three hours requires quite a bit of manipulation. Some of the best complexes have developed from taking low intermediate tennis four times without promotion.

we sign up for A. A.

A.A. is as much a tradition as any other extra-curricular activity at Barnard. Its Executive Board presents a year-long program of exercise and relaxation providing fun for all students who are willing and eager to participate. The fall season is accentuated by the tennis tournaments, always enthusiastically watched by the college. The Water Ballet, a brilliantly executed performance given in December, is the highlight of the winter session. Greek Games, the most traditional activity at Barnard, is the culminating point of the spring term. "Will the Frosh beat the Sophs?" is the question that rings through Barnard's hall every April. And finally, the A.A. banquet provides the background for awards given to those girls who have earned them throughout the college year.

The Trail Blazers Camp Committee.

The Barnard CAMP

October and the All-College Barbecue bring us from Barnard in New York to Barnard in Westchester. Weekends find us skating, skiing and hiking, with Dream Lake or the Croton Dam as our objectives. Less active members play bridge before an open fire. Open House cures us of mid-term blues and offers relief after the strain of exams. Spring Barbecue allows us to prove to the opposite sex that as well as being a "dream of a dancer," we can pitch a mean baseball and be charmingly rural.

The temperament of the stove may prevent us from relishing muffins for breakfast, but nothing can surpass the inspiring whip of the fall air or the glowing warmth of a crackling fire which renews "camping friendships strong and true."

Evenings of moonlight ice skating or cries aroused by "the Game," attempts to portray Existentialism by pantomime, make camp fun whether it be in the presence of winter cold or summer sun. And the hearty cry of "Yip-ta-min-a-ga-" as we round the turn leading back to Barnard in New York makes us vow to come back again and again.

NOON

The shrill noon bell rings in the hour packed with myriads of meetings, a mob on Jake, softened perhaps, by the occasional glimpse of a man. There are the sandwiches munched over a typewriter, half-backed decisions, shrieks and groans and forgotten appointments. Time passes on to the quiet of the library and the hush of a classroom.

"The Induc-teas"

The effort to create a good first impression always throws the junior class into a frenzy. The Wednesday before the opening of school becomes a living issue of Blue Book. Traditional are the services at St. Paul's, the luncheon at Brooks, the odd bits of information deemed absolutely necessary to the existence of new students. The ceremonies exemplify the transmission of pride in Barnard and the beginning of a warm bond between sister classes.

REPRESENTATIVE ASSEMBLY

Future members of the League of Women Voters meet every other Monday at twelve o'clock in room 408. The affairs of state are discussed and debated under the leadership of Helen Pond, undergraduate president. Responsibility toward the student body marks this agency of forty class representatives as an intelligent and impressive part of student government. The expression of opinion and respect for that view make this body what its title indicates—a Representative Assembly of the campus community.

Government by the governed.

GOVERNMENT

STUDENT COUNCIL

Student Council is the "medium of communication between the student body and the faculty." Cap and gown formality is relieved by the absence of parliamentary procedure in the weekly meetings of this vital group. Among other things, it charters undergraduate organizations and approves petitions of outside college affairs. Under the able direction of Helen Pond, undergraduate president, this year's drive toward the establishment of Barnard's membership in NSA has been the crux of Student Council's activities. Throughout the years, Student Council is primarily interested in representing student opinion to the faculty and arousing student interest in extra-curricular affairs.

Residence Council

Brooks and Hewitt Halls operate under a system of student government whose president is a member of Student Council. It governs social functions and administers dormitory regulations.

Senior Proctors

Missing assemblies or class meetings without an excuse entails the payment of fines. Forgetfulness or neglect requires an explanation to the Court of Senior Proctors.

Honor Board

Helping the student recognize all the fields into which the Honor System extends is the primary occupation of Elizabeth Lowe and her board members.

BARNARD

Eligibility Committee

A glance in the morgue will tell us about eligibility, but actual and final decisions are made by the committee itself.

Term Drive

Care: our term drive! A reflection of the student realization that it is one of the neediest causes in the world today.

Social Committee

Coordinating Columbia men with Barnard girls and refreshments at Coffee Dances, and arousing enthusiasm for the Christmas Formal, Social Committee enables students to enjoy the "good old college days."

COMMITTEES

Vocational Committee

Vocational Committee will get that summer or permanent job for you. A browsing shelf and occasional teas belong to the committee's less professional duties.

Curriculum Committee

Aiming to achieve a more balanced and integrated course of study, the Curriculum Committee is the medium between faculty and students in academic matters.

Calendar Committee

Members of the Calendar Committee make more dates than any other girls in the college, schedule the year's social events under the guidance of Mrs. English.

BULLETIN

For those who have printer's ink in their veins there is no need to mention that Bulletin, the haven of the typewriter, is the most lived-in office in Barnard.

The time of a normal copy day at Bulletin is roughly divided into three categories. At ten, copy is due. At two, the stuff comes flowing in, an eternal stream of words, but the staff members are bending over microscopes in lab. A few devout individuals re-write stories, headline them, and when the paper finally goes to bed about four, the managing editors, wearing grins of a Cheshire cat, try to forget it all over a spot of tea.

*Marilyn Schwartz and Ruth Laudesman
Managing Editors*

This unusually placid shot of the Bulletin office includes feature editors Betty Wall and Marguerite St. John, in charge of the more creative type of writing in Bulletin. Their work includes interviewing student or faculty personalities, and previewing and reviewing the activities of campus and outside organizations. Their staff has the less thankful but essential job of pruning headlines and supporting mechanical phases of the work. This dual combination results in the substantial second page without which Barnard would not be "in the know."

Bear

Barnard's Bear never hibernates! Business Staff scurries from store to store; literary staff studies dissertations; art staff sketches from tree tops! A broad view of things, via enjoyable readings, is its motto!

Blue Book

The function of Blue Book is to acquaint the undergraduate with the various phases of college life. It contains all administrative regulations affecting the student, together with descriptions of clubs and student organizations.

Press Board

Press Board is the link between each student and her home town; is the student center of college news distributions; and is a training ground for the future reporters, correspondents and press agents.

That our giant task of creating the 1949 Mortarboard was a chore we hesitantly admit, because the fun we had doing it overshadows those hours of writing the appropriate phrase and taking the perfect picture.

We saw it grow, this Yearbook, from snapshot, dummy and scattered words to the symbol of Time at Barnard and our survey of college life.

But the barriers that faced us melt away into the past now that we hold the finished product in our hands and pass it on to you, the final judges.

To us it is close because we created it; to you it is close because it is you!

Majors in MORTARBOARD

The meeting place of tremendous appetite but limited diet! Oratory on assignments and professors, and slander, in general, rage above empty plates and well-filled ash trays of the cafeteria.

Food...

Ending the academic year with a scintillating luncheon, '49 gathered at the Men's Faculty Club. The affair was climaxed by an hilarious presentation of the class history and predictions of famous lecturers which lent great hope for the future of Barnard.

Conversational Counterpoint

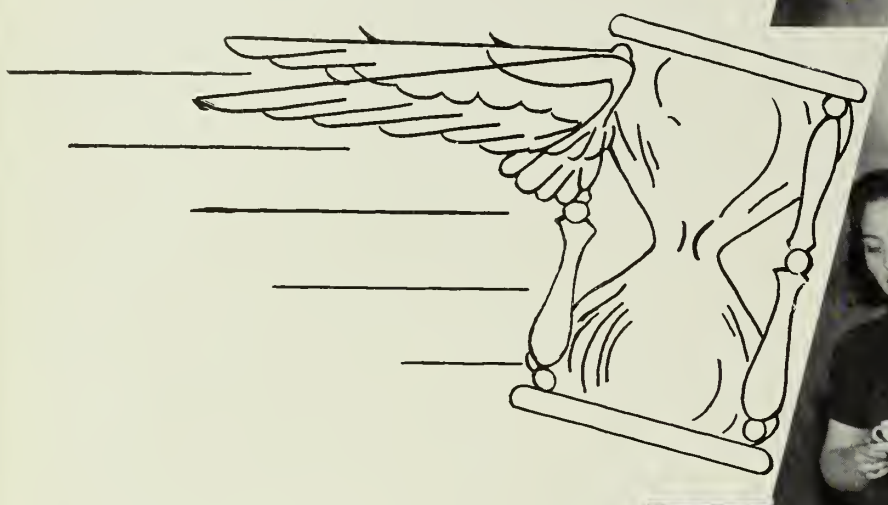

... For Thought

Variety is conglomerated in Odd Study. Oral cramming, piano duets, contemplation of fine art, lively discussions of "life," and peaceful slumber go on at once! Almost as much philosophical thought has been dedicated to the mysterious disappearance of its couch as to Plato's Dialogues. It is noisiest after weekends, its informality lending itself to confession; loneliest on Saturdays when well-laid plans are being shrewdly carried out.

Due to a spurt of conscienciousness Ella Weed also monopolizes many spare moments. Careful avoidance of the magazine rack, current book displays, and the poetry alcove—much intensive reading and copious note-taking—the sense of accomplishment make the hour well spent.

The power of the printed word dominates free-time planning.

AFTERNOON

Four o'clock spells tea: gleaming white cups, great samovars. We forget our cares, move across the street for Earl Hall's religious discussions or dances, chatter in delicate French, contemplate Goethe and discuss Dante. No rush, no hectic, lost beings; only quiet voices over a tea cup, giving Barnard an atmosphere of graciousness welcomed by all.

GREEK GAMES

Authenticity in action.

Grace

for 1947

In the clash of cymbals is re-echoed the voice of an ancient civilization whose tenets still permeate modern thought. Each spring life is breathed into the colorful ceremonies, the stately personages of the old Greek world in a portrayal of splendor and dignity. The production of the panorama belongs to the freshman and sophomore classes and to their faculty advisers. The weeks of "painful" progress are instantaneously obliterated by the spirit and excitement evoked by the signal for the presentation at three o'clock.

It was to Dionysus that Greek Games in the spring of 1947 were dedicated—to the provocative god of spring and wine. The traditional phases of the Games were particularized by the dominant characteristics of the chosen figure. The impressive entrance embodied the symbolic conflict of divided devotion among the citizens, climaxed by exuberant expectation of the contests to follow.

Through composition and execution, the two dance groups dramatized the relationship of Dionysus to the Orphic Mysteries and the poignant story of Ariadne, supplemented by original musical accompaniment.

An aura of frenzy—of vicarious participation—pervaded the spectators during the athletic events, performed amidst loud cheers of "Nike!" The form, grace and adeptness of the "horses" and charioteer never failed to stir the audience. After the final shouts, the victorious freshmen received their wreaths. The coveted chariot rides brought the pageant to a fitting close.

Speed. . . .

Form. . . .

Joan Abbrancati and her able staff re-organized coffee-dance time this year. And with our whole-hearted approval and blessing!

COFFEE...

Printed invitations were sent to Columbia fraternities whose members cooperated closely with Barnard's Social Affairs Committee. Ticket prices were chopped in half, more refreshments were served, and the gay floral decorations created a new atmosphere of elegance.

...OR TEA?

Wednesday afternoon finds most of Barnard partaking of refreshments in an informal atmosphere. Even the never-say-die bridge players deign to move their game onto the floor of the College Parlor. The distraction of the tea line and cookie rush interrupt eternal conversation for but a few seconds. The tea chairmen behold this as the perfect opportunity for the promotion of closer faculty-student relations and design their program for the year accordingly. Organization now invades the College Tea, as a committee is formed for the care and feeding of guests, but the informality becomes shared rather than destroyed.

OFF-CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

WKCR

WKCR is the mecca for the future artists and technicians of the air waves. Working together, Columbia and Barnard students present talented and professional performances.

Community Service

Community Service provides the students with the opportunity to work in psychological clinics, laboratories and juvenile courts. Supervision is in the hands of trained leaders.

INTERFAITH

Under the chairmanship of Eleanor Morse, Interfaith aims to increase student awareness of chapel talks this year. Composed of the five religious clubs on the campus, Interfaith Council's overall purpose at Barnard is to bring about the greatest possible degree of cooperation among these groups. It provides an opportunity for all students of different faiths to work together towards a common goal and to enable them to know and respect each other's religious customs and traditions.

With enthusiasm equalling that of past Suffragettes, club members tackle the problem of transporting significant world events into campus consciousness. Deutscher Kreis is noted for the poetic notes which invite one to drink "eine Tasse Thee" in the room where tablecloths are checked and Goethe presides.

Brazilian Club

Good food and spontaneous musical programs characterize the meetings of the Brazilian Club. Hospitality knows no bounds, and promises to teach Portuguese are freely directed to any novice.

Italian Club

Operatic arias and well-known drama characterize much of the activity of the Italian Club. The atmosphere provides a cultural background for the academic counterpart.

Spanish Club

This year members of the Spanish Club were chiefly concerned with furnishing their new club room. They continued nevertheless, to present rollicking song and dance programs in addition to serious spells of competitive recitations.

French Club

In the red, white and blue room in Milbank, members enjoy both social meetings or lectures by prominent speakers. Upholding the torch of French culture at Barnard is the aim of Societe Francaise.

Glee Club

The practical goal of the Glee Club is to further student interest in choral singing. Frequent appearances before Barnard bear witness to its fine work.

Music Club

Programs which eminent musicians, composers, and critics lead stimulate student interest in musical theory. Musical ability or not—all students are welcomed to the Music Club.

Fine Arts Club

To cultivate group interest for student followers and a college-wide appreciation, the Fine Arts Club sponsors exhibitions of painting and sculpture in Odd Study.

REALMS of REASON

Illustrative application and discussion of the abstract and physical sciences culminate in the Science and Math Clubs and the Pre-Medical Society. With flexible programs adaptable to the particular needs of the science major and to the general interest of all Barnardites, these agencies comprise the vortex of the practical and imaginative expression of the science students.

Relying upon visual and auditory education, the clubs provide lectures, movies and field trips for their members. These groups believe that discussion of the present and future problems will bring about a more thorough comprehension of occupational situations, and will aid in the adjustment of the "Scientist" to his field.

Barnard's affiliation with the Columbia Pre-Medical Society has provided opportunities on a larger scale for a more complete and coordinated series of meetings.

EVENING

Orchids in a transparent box, brusque male voices and eager hearts; curtain time replaces study time as dungarees are traded for the "new look"; the steady beat of dancing and laughter, smiling eyes and quiet chatter; the inevitable deadline. Time passes, closes its eyes and goes to sleep at last.

at THE DORMS

"The Wearers of the Jeans"—the gals who post notices on their doors: "Be back dans un moment," or "Sleeping" at any time of the day: these are the dorm students.

The most tightly-knit social group at Barnard, the dorm students sign out for a walk along Riverside or dash over to the Lion's Den, or else they graciously receive visitors on Open House Day. They sing Auld Lang Syne, spill Chopin over the keys in the Music Room. A cheerful, hurried element in the dorms where Time is measured only by the individual wants and worries. For a collegiate atmosphere at Barnard,—go to the dorms.

A Maiden's Night Out

It is at night that the Barnard girl discards her jeans and substitutes fur and silks to "sign out" for an evening with "him." The hectic tension of the academic day is in the past; smiles and relaxation belong to the future.

The evening gaiety begins: she takes in a Broadway show, dances at Cafe Society, but inevitably ends up at the "Den."

The warmth of friendships won through the working day, finds its fruition in play. The informal chats on the campus, the casual greetings in the hall are given a deeper meaning in the nonchalant pace of an evening.

It is in the social sense as well as the academic that "New York is Barnard's Laboratory"—and however hackneyed that phrase may have become, its truth is evidenced in the charm of an evening on the island.

WIGS and CUES

One look at the Brinckerhoff stage will tell any keen observer that the bounds are narrow, the possibilities uncertain. But the enthusiasm and aggressiveness that mark the members of Wigs and Cues successfully overcome these and other barriers. And so it is that their ambition has led them to present polished productions of poetic Irish bits like The Golden Doom in the past or G. B. Shaw's St. Joan in the present.

The group itself offers a vital opportunity for future Sarah Bernhardts or prospective stage managers and directors. Acceptance for membership is determined by the Board's appraisal of dramatic and histrionic ability as demonstrated in tryouts, club and class plays. An added attraction is the lack of dues.

Under Anne Ford's leadership, this year's group has flourished as splendidly as in the past. Hard work and steady devotion result in evenings of excellent productions to which the entire college looks forward with a sense of justified eagerness.

CHRISTMAS

Cooperation was the keynote of Barnard's Christmas Ball held in conjunction with the Columbia Dean's Drag this year. An innovation in the modern history of Barnard, it was designed to create a good-neighbor policy, socially speaking; and to raise money for a fund which will finance the education of needy students.

The distaff side of this social juncture was aptly handled by the Barnard Hall Social Committee, while Columbia's Van Am Society undertook the burdens of toting Christmas boughs, pine and wreaths, throughout John Jay Hall, and generally performing the menial, but manly tasks.

Inside John Jay, flickering candle light caught the sparkle of the jewels and the sheen of the satin. Massive and unusual decorations lent an air of grandeur to the festivities.

The good-will sentiment was captured in the spirit of a welcoming address by Columbia's Dean Carman. The charm of the holiday season was reflected throughout the campus.

"New York Is Barnard's Laboratory" was evidently written with a utopian college in mind—a utopian college where education consists of visiting the Stork Club, wandering vaguely through museums, and discussing obscure poetry in smoke-filled rooms—a utopian college where the heroine, Evalina Eager is the epitome of the lost freshman badly misunderstood by her Junior sister, Shari Blase.

The basic virtue of this year's show was its attempt to avoid the "mad, merry" mood characteristic of Junior Shows in the past. Instead its essence was a combination of intellectual appraisal, word plays and ambiguities which were thoroughly appreciated by the audience.

That "New York Is Barnard's Laboratory" successfully mirrored the hectic, bustling civilization which doesn't know where it is going but is determined to get there anyway, is by now, a verity.

It Is Later Than You Think

What may seem Time's end at Barnard is really a new beginning for us, a new Time in the world where our social whirl will branch into broader, richer fields.

The petals of the rose at the ceremony will wilt but the planted ivy will grow still firmer, ever taller, a living symbol of our personal growth, whether it be social or intellectual.

Looking backward, we remember old friends, the hectic, fantastic notes of commencement; a degree and the switching of the Mortarboard tassel to the left; the hurried scrawls in yearbooks; and the nostalgic wave of goodbyes that should have been au revoir!

Looking forward, we take the first step into the new beginning, seek a summer job, and keep our eye on that trip to Paris.

But always our hearts and minds go back to Barnard and all that it means to us. The year comes to a close amid rose petals, ivy leaves, sunny laughter and memories of jobs well done. And the looking forward into Time. . . .

*"Barnard, Barnard, shout
we in pride. . . ."*

Ave atque Vale

Although Mrs. McIntosh has already won the respect and devotion of the college, the vivid memory of Virginia Crocheron Gildersleeve, our former dean, will never fade. It is with true appreciation of her generous contribution to Barnard College in particular, and to her furtherance of international understanding in general, that we tender this salutation to her.

PHYLLIS ABRAMS

... Modest, quiet, reserved ... gifted with a remarkable, scientific mind, Phyllis expects to teach mathematics or do laboratory work ... her unusual hobby and major—an intensive study in the field of physics ... enthusiastically follows the Dodger baseball games ... loves to listen to marches, hike, swim, and experiment "with all new baking recipes" ...

JUDITH ALLISON

... Small, blonde ... appears quiet, serious, and reserved—but claims she is quite the opposite ... writes the most beautiful and moving poetry ... spent two years at Barnard—was head of photography here ... is now working with photography in earnest ... haunts WKCR over at Columbia—is proud to be associated with that radio station and college ...

MARIA DE ALTERIIS

... Drives a red jeep ... loves the opera, movies, travel, people ... mainstay of Circulo Italiano, speaks Italian fluently ... a typical Barnardite, Maria hates term papers and reports ... really enthusiastic about history, is especially fascinated by the study of medieval Europe ... is not sure what the future holds for her, but hopes that it will be fun ...

FLORENCE AMSTERDAM

... Dean's list transfer from Vassar ... Flo and her doctor husband share hobbies—making their own movies with an eye to producing entire shows for their own amusement ... marriage means more than just the trip to Texas, Lake Louise, and Bryce Canyon ... along with the "sweet stuff" continues her interest in psychology, politics, art, and the theater ...

BETTY ANDERSON

... Geology major with a bent for collecting rocks ... would like to take a secretarial course and combine it with her major ... greatest frustrations in life are having to take beginner's tennis each season and her inability to get a driver's license ... has tucked away for future reference her ambition to travel abroad, Europe or South America ...

ELEANOR DE ANTONIO

... Known as "De" to her friends ... this winning economics major displays great interest in current political affairs—was president of Debate Council, Town Meeting chairman of Political Council, and a member of Liberal Club ... future plans include doing research work in economics and government ... always prompt for appointments ...

VIVIAN ASPLUND

... Loves New York, has lived here all her life ... a transfer, Vivian is impressed by the friendliness, cooperation, and widely varied backgrounds of Barnard students ... hobbies include boating, photography, sketching, walking, informal chatting ... eco-government major, will study law and then work in a labor organization or government agency ...

FLORA BARISHMAN

... Petite and dainty, idealistic but practical ... a music major and accomplished pianist, Flora plans on marriage but will not give up music for it ... wants to see Paris and Rome, has already seen the U. S. ... is mad about folk dancing and all exotic foods ... when not folk dancing, spends spare time bicycling and hiking ...

DORIS AUGUSTINE

... Her cheerful disposition, good looks, and delightfully frequent giggle help to make her social life a very busy one ... commuted from Mt. Vernon to Barnard for two years ... never worried about exams while here, breezed through with a happy-go-lucky air ... greatly interested in studying voice and the piano ...

JEAN BATCHELDER

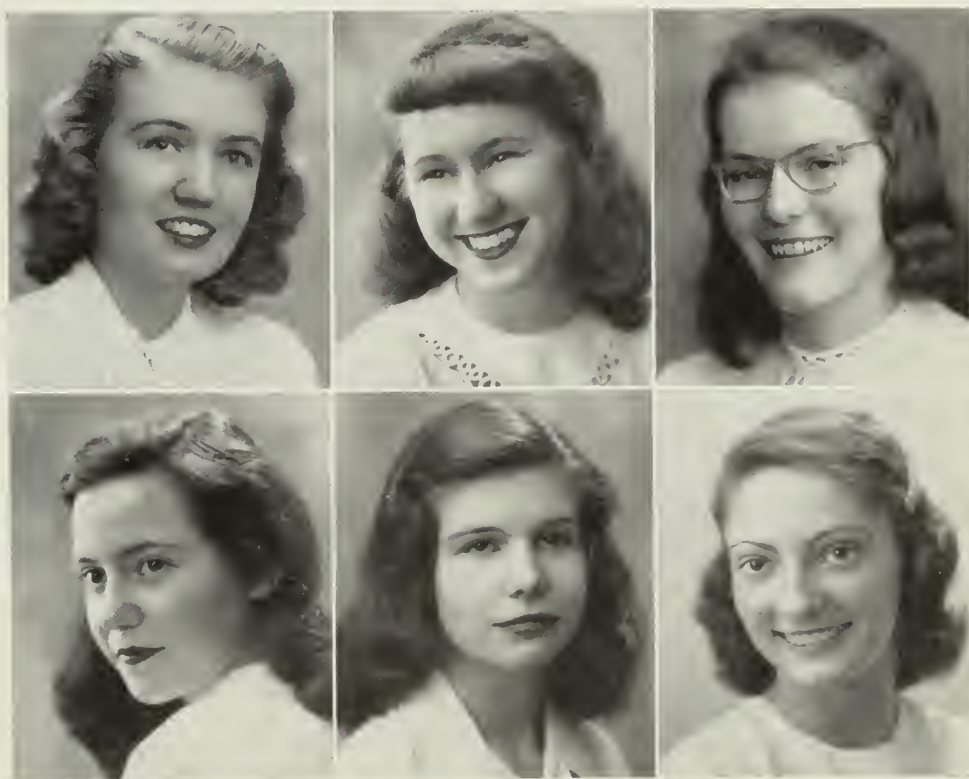

... Always cool, calm, and collected with a ready answer for every occasion ... has been accurately referred to as dignified in spite of her love for ridiculous sayings which she calls "burbles" ... they're tacked to her mirror, properly inscribed on 3 x 5 index cards ... is an English comp major aiming to crash the literary world and become famous ...

DOROTHY BAKER

... A transfer from New York University ... as a pre-medical student, Dorothy is majoring in zoölogy ... home town is upstate in Kingston, but is now living in Memorial Hospital where she works in the evening as an emergency lab technician ... greatest desire at the moment is to obtain admittance to medical school next year ...

DORIS BECKER

... Interested in human relations and education ... this involves trying to become friends with all her new classmates ... attended Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois ... another of our history majors, plans to teach after graduation ... likes Barnard and is pleased and amazed that one can be made to feel so welcome in such a short time ...

JOAN BENSON

... A New Haven product, Joan now lives in Kew Gardens, L. I. ... transferred from Finch Jr. College and is majoring in psychology ... studies voice and piano ... sang in the Cape Cod light opera troupe ... belongs to the choir and the local drama group of Richmond Hill ... hopes to teach, with music and drama as sidelines ...

ELAINE SCHACHNE

... A New Yorker who really likes New York ... plans to continue with her psychology studies after graduation as well as work with them ... likes sports of all types—especially skiing ... has a keen interest in music and current events which she avidly follows ... will leave the "humdrum" out of married life when she finally settles down ...

CECELIA SCHAUER

... Ceil's hide and seek dimple is often caught in a smile ... a math major looking forward to research work ... an idealist about people, she is anxious to travel and meet many more ... was twice a Greek Games horse ... an ardent swimmer and skater ... loves music, too, which explains her fondness for Barnard Step Singing ...

JOAN SCHILT

... Zoö major interested in semantics ... dislikes turnips but likes clams, music, mountain climbing ... claims she ties ribbons on the tops of mountains over 3,500 feet ... likes goats and Charles Adams, Vermont, and the smell of the ocean ... wants a horse, a sailboat, world peace, and most difficult to attain, says she, an A in chem ...

MARGARET SCHNEIDER

... Schmots with her antique blue jeans is a familiar figure around the campus, always eating ... philosophy is her major, journalism and a family of nine, her plans for future ... famous for her long weekends ... likes classes in which no attendance is taken, they make her feel more mature ... worries because Einstein says the universe isn't infinite ...

ROSALIND SCHOENFELD

... Another fourth floor Milbanker who hopes to turn into a research chemist ... knits sweaters and beautiful argyle socks like a fiend ... is fun-loving, carefree, and thoroughly enjoyable company ... was Menorah treasurer, Mortarboard member, Wigs & Cues protégée ... spent a summer at Cornell ... now wears a Penn M.D.'s pin ...

MARY SCHOFIELD

... Transfer from the University of Delaware in her sophomore year ... has chosen geography for her major here at Barnard ... says she's too engrossed in the wonderful present to plan for the far-away future ... bubbles over with a "joie-de-vivre" ... dancing is a favorite pastime ... devotes much time to her hobby, photography ...

ALMA SCHUHMACHER

... Loves college life—with reason ... has the touch of Midas for getting A's ... loves languages and speaks fluent German and French ... a charming personality rates her a place on the Social Committee ... plays the violin and haunts Carnegie Hall in her spare time ... an eco major, ambition is to be a big executive in business ...

ALBERTA SCHUMACHER

... A sociology major, would like to go into personnel management and personnel administration ... born in Louisville, Kentucky—annoyed by Yankees who disparage the South although they have never lived there ... fond of sports, particularly tennis, swimming, and basketball ... worked in Civil Service before coming to Barnard ... likes church music ...

ANNE SEGREE

... Born in the States, Anne returned after eleven years in Jamaica ... will teach high school English there ... staunch believer in progressive education ... English lit major, partial to plays of G.B.S. ... modest and unassuming, dislikes affectation ... sympathetic and understanding nature leads people to confide in her ... hopes to keep the friends she has made here ...

MARY SHERROCK

... Mary Beth thinks being a New Yorker is exciting ... loves the theatre and parties, but misses her car and driving around her native Pennsylvania hills ... vivacious and sociable ... loves to talk ... as much as friends love to listen to her ... plans on marriage and settling down in a home of her own after college ...

ANNABEL SIMONDS

... Sy's charm, enthusiasm, and willingness to help when needed make her a welcome addition to the campus ... loves the University atmosphere ... has more college spirit than six people put together ... member of Spanish Club, Mortarboard, was Greek Games hurdler, Sophomore Challenger ... economics major with an interest in Spanish, plans to go into importing and exporting ...

AUDREY SKELTON

Audrey of the perennial feather cut, clear blue eyes and a fine singing voice ... has a talent for keeping compatriots amused ... interested in people, is alternately annoyed and entertained by riding in New York's subways ... is a great prom-trotter ... an American Studies major, will direct her energies toward a journalistic career ...

BERNADINE SMITH

... Bernie is sociable, Bernie is easy-going, Bernie is charming, Bernie is engaged ... a chem major since she thought up the idea at the tender age of nine ... is constant to her first loves ... finds time for her favorite preferences—swimming and dancing ... has a warm spot in her heart for Butch, her pet cat ...

MARY JANE SMITH

... Exchanged life on the campus far above Cayuga's waters and prospects of a career in chemical engineering, for commuting on the "only railroad with square wheels"—L.I.R.R., and a psych major at Barnard ... would like to get into accident prevention work in engineering, travel to South America ... loves snow ... sailing in any weather ...

LOIS SOONS

... Spanish major, drops homework anytime to go to a Spanish movie, asking "Do you think this will ever replace studying?" ... ironic wit ... wants to visit Mexico to get practice for Spanish comprehensive ... ambition—to climb to fourth floor Milbank and still be able to breathe ... loves dancing, swing music, basketball games at high school in Goshen ...

MARION STEELE

... "Barnard's excellent chemistry department" enticed Marion from Denison University in Granville, Ohio ... she is now majoring in philosophy although she still loves chem ... intends to work either the field of education or social research after graduation from Barnard ... delighted with our college and adores New York ... dear to her friends as "cece-onion soup" ...

SALLY SPEAR

... A real "down-easter" who's everybody's friend ... Spearie is an indispensable whiz at pounding nails for Wigs and Cues ... is a real skiing enthusiast with up-to-date reports on snow conditions—mighty good at the sport, too ... sociology is her major ... has an eye to work in personnel for which she is well suited ...

RUTH STERN

... A transfer from Carlton College in the "frozen wilds of Minnesota" ... Skippy has, in her year at Barnard, become very enthusiastic about our entire educational system ... although originally a sociology major, is now a psych major ... is fascinated by people ... however, abhors those who squash cigarettes into dishes not intended as ash trays! ...

HANNAH SPITZER

... Glad to be back in New York after two years at Smith ... Barnard's chief appeal lies in the fact that it combines a high scholastic rating with location in town ... born in Austria, majoring in International Relations and planning to work in that field ... widespread interests, among which are music, world affairs, reading, movies, and people ...

VIRGINIA STIX

... Wants to do work connected with her sociology major either in Cincinnati, her home, or New York ... other interests are art—belonged to the Art Club at Briarcliff Junior College—and California where she has spent two summers ... convinced that speech is more golden than silence ... gregarious, loves a good time ... has a passion for suits ...

SYDELLE STONE

... One of Dr. Alsop's well integrated personalities ... combines sparkling wit with penetrating and well-ordered thought ... a philosophy major, Sydelle likes to dream up Utopias ... is as interested in national affairs as in literature ... writes remarkable imitations of sob stories in spare time ... loves that dorm life ... and the fun that comes with it ...

AUDREY STONER

... Audrey disguises an inherent impishness with her quiet exterior ... a chem major looking forward to a career in bio-chemistry ... enthusiastic about baseball and boogie woogie ... campaigns in the fight against racial prejudice ... spends hours daily commuting to the "best little state in the world—New Jersey," but says Barnard is definitely worth the time and effort ...

SHIRLEY STOUT

... International Relations major with love for travel ... wore out her blue jeans last summer on a cross-country bus trip to her Oregon home by way of New Orleans and Mexico City ... now spending junior year abroad at University of London ... hyperactive—accomplishes wonders in thoroughly unconventional ways ... has active interest in social work ...

MARGARET STUCKI

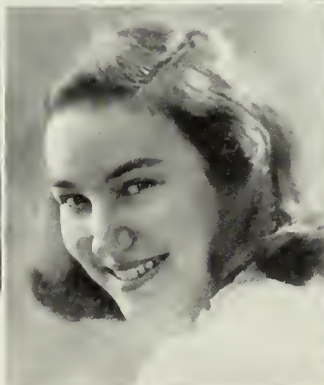

... A quiet demeanor, a philosophical mind, and a serious outlook on life ... enjoys painting as a medium of expression ... would like to do post-graduate work in the techniques of art ... a devotee of Beethoven and Chopin, Tolstoy, Schopenhauer, and Thoreau ... transferred from Georgia University ... enjoys her commuting by ferry boat across the Hudson ...

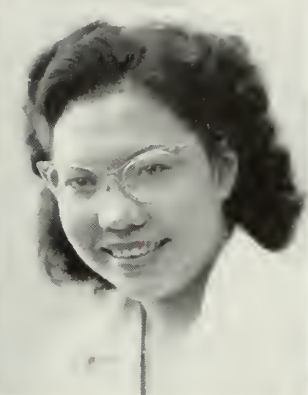

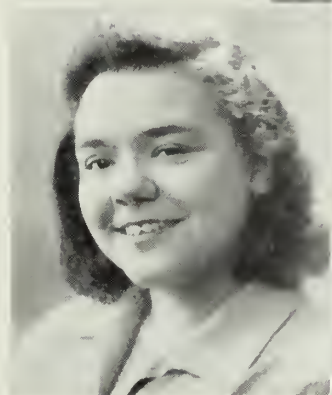

MARY SULTZER

... A typical "typical college girl" ... active in extra-curricular activities — an enthusiastic member of St. Paul's choir, assistant station manager of WKCR, participated in water ballet, swimming committee, and Greek Games dance ... a physics major, Mary insists that she rationalizes everything—but that twinkle in her eye indicates that occasionally impulse wins ...

BARRIE TAIT

... Whimsical as her illustrious namesake, the famous playwright, Barrie wants to visit his birthplace after making her first million ... fun to be with ... loves living in New York, enjoys exploring the Bohemian atmosphere of the Village ... collects all sorts of articles, pictures, dogs, and ballet programs ... active in U.C.A., Residence Halls Council, and Bulletin ...

TERESA TALENTO

... The epitome of exuberance and action, Tee has a sparkling sense of humor and personal charm which wins friends wherever she goes ... an excellent dancer, she was an essential figure in Greek Games during our freshman year ... one of the few Barnardites who never seemed to tire while here ... is now working in a law office ...

PEGGY TALLY

... A government major, this attractive and intelligent Barnardite has a thorough knowledge of all phases of American political life ... well suited to the government research work which she intends to do after graduation ... also boasts a good game of tennis and a knowledge of the newest dance steps ... finds life agreeable except for nine o'clock classes ...

OLIVE TAMBORELLE

... Olie—English lit major and junior transfer ... most exciting experience was living with "hillbillies" during her first two years of college at Maryville, Tennessee ... ambition to be a librarian will probably be fulfilled after a year at Columbia's School of Library Science following graduation ... hobby is traveling ...

CHARLOTTE TAYLOR

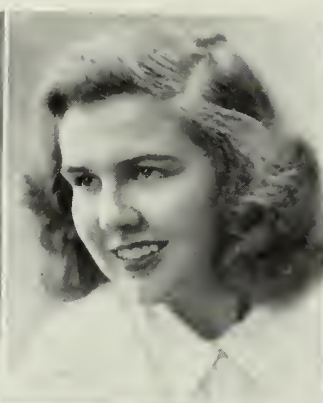

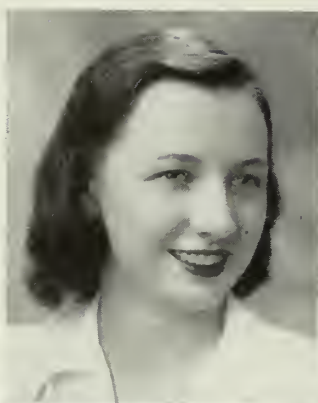

Charlotte—a study in contrasts ... majors in social psychology, interested in people and how they work, also wants to live alone on a hill, write novels and raise dogs ... likes medieval and modern music and nothing in between ... represents the right wing of the Liberal Club ... an active and valuable member of the Bear staff ...

EULA TEAGUE

... Came to the United States from the Philippines to fulfill her childhood ambition to study and become a chemist ... studied at Berkeley for two years before New York's fascination drew her here ... friends mean a great deal and they are attracted by her lively nature ... enjoys the rhumba and jitterbug dancing ... has performed in amateur ballet ...

ANN TERRY

... Lives for Christmas vacations spent skiing in Vermont ... once active member of WKCR, now official photographer of Bulletin ... keenly interested in current political affairs ... Russian Studies major ... ballet fan, practices leaps and twirls in dorm corridors at night ... fond of Shakespeare, T. S. Eliot, the theatre ... future offers wide choice of activities ...

HARRIET TOLLEY

... A Latin American major with ambitions to work south of the border ... sweet, modest, and engaging ... Mortarboard Advertising Manager, junior class vice-president, Rep Assembly and Social Committee member ... a dorm student, her comfortable chaise lounge is favorite resting place of Five Hewitt ... proud of her amateur knitting—has knitted one argyle sock ...

JEANNE VERLEYE

... Varied interests ... membership in Pre-Law Club is only clue to government major ... works on Barnard committee of U.C.A. ... adept at sports—deck tennis manager on A.A. Board, member of 8 A.M. committee ... Greek Games kept her busy for two years ... loves music, especially piano ... is one of the plutocrats who have season tickets to the opera ...

MARGARET WARD

... Blithe spirit with broad shoulders ... loves New England summers and Minnesota winters, sketching, dancing ... majors in American Studies, minors in history and government ... would like to work with the International Red Cross, do historical research on Lincoln and the Civil War ... as Junior Social Chairman worries about capricious hotels ...

MARILYN WARD

... Endowed with a cheerful easy-going manner concealing a more serious nature—enthusiastic about athletics especially tennis and roller skating—won several cups and medals for both competitive skating and proficiency in dance and figure skating ... has a scientific bent in addition to athletic interest—a chemistry major, hopes to work in a lab after graduation ...

CARMEN WARREK

... Red-headed transfer from N.Y.U. ... possesses a contagious laugh which she frequently exhibits ... engaging friend ... International Studies major with emphasis on South America for which she already has a wonderful background—has lived most of her life in Puerto Rico ... is an active member of Spanish Club ... pet love is cats of all varieties ...

ANN WATTERS

... Spends most of her time commuting between Odd Study and fourth floor Milbank ... like University view from Odd Study window ... Newman Club member, former Greek Games horse ... woman of few words, reserves pearls of wisdom for opportune moments ... favors short career—either teaching or cooking up chemical compounds of her own ...

MADELEINE WEIGNER

... An international background which had her residing in Austria, England, Ecuador, and other varied and sundry places, contribute to Madeleine's ability to speak six languages fluently ... fled from Vienna to escape the Nazis ... majoring in French ... mainstay of Newman, I.R.C., and French Clubs ... likes the theatre, ballet, and those Barnard coffee dances ...

MARION WESTEN

... A new Barnardite with widely diversified interests ... majors in English lit, but would like to go into law or do economic research work after the A.B. is achieved ... spent two years at Bates College, Lewiston, Maine, where she was active in debating, public speaking, and the University Christian Association ... swimming is her major sports interest ...

WINIFRED WEISLOGEL

... International Studies major ... ambition is to enter the U. S. consular service or the Secretariat of the United Nations ... recent transfer from Union Junior College ... music lover—opera to New Orleans jazz ... works off any surplus energy square dancing or bowling ... fond of French and Russian classics ... has a lingering affection for Boris Karloff ...

JANE WESTERVELT

... Blessed with imagination, Jane amazes her friends with amusing and varied activities ... her dorm room reflects her personality ... filled with books, Fritos, strange objects and her latest fad, whether plastic balloons or painted walnuts ... a renegade from the botany and English departments ... enjoys her major in American Studies ... future includes travel ...

ELIZABETH WERTH

... Elizabeth's goal is a Ph.D. in French or International Affairs ... yearns to settle in the United States, near Barnard, although her present home is in Yugoslavia ... delights in the study of languages—studied philology at Heidelberg, is studying French here ... appreciates Barnard for its friendliness and the opportunity it offers for satisfying one's "thirst for knowledge" ...

MARY WESTFALL

... Is a transfer from Parker Collegiate Institute in Brooklyn where she was president of her senior class ... Westy majors in history, and is especially interested in international affairs and foreign relations ... has always been enthusiastic about all sports—tennis currently holds top place ... also entertains a passion for horse shows and dog shows ...

HELEN WHEELER

. . . Hails from Long Island, making home during her stay at Barnard at King's Crown Hotel . . . junior transfer from the Junior College of the Packer Collegiate Institute . . . majoring in American Studies and very busy not only with the usual school work but holding down the impressive post of Executive Secretary of the Freeport Chamber of Commerce . . .

ANNE WHELAN

. . . A little girl from a little state . . . sweet and charming, also known for her ability to think well and intelligently about issues of major importance . . . wants to do social work after graduation . . . loves to ride horseback and never tires of the joys of swimming in the ocean . . . dancing is another of her favorite diversions . . .

MARLIES WOLF

. . . Enthusiastic about the arts, sculpturing and the opera ranking as favorites . . . loves her philosophy major . . . German born . . . many talents include writing, sculpturing, and sketching . . . Bear, Bulletin, Greek Games properties chairman are major extra-curricular activities . . . looks forward to future role of wife combined with writing career or library research . . .

LOIS WOODWARD

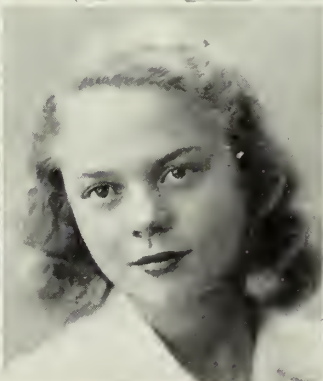

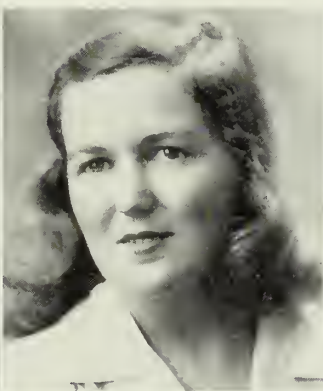

. . . Transfer from Wilson College in Pennsylvania . . . this psych major with a practical turn of mind claims she is not a Patron of the Arts . . . never goes to the opera or the ballet . . . confesses she does go to movies and plays "occasionally" . . . a typical Barnard sports enthusiast . . . likes to watch football . . . plays baseball, tennis, everything else . . .

CHARLOTTE WORRALL

. . . Came to Barnard from Honolulu after a two-year stop-over at Briarcliff Junior College . . . majors in sociology, would like to major in movie appreciation . . . follows fire engines fanatically . . . always falls for corny jokes . . . plans to return home after graduation and enter the field of social work . . . "but living in New York is quite an experience" . . .

JOAN WURTHMANN

. . . Scientifically inclined, Joan enjoys her botany major, even the many hours spent in lab . . . transferred last fall from Wellesley where she was active in the dramatic group and the Christian Association . . . likes sailing and collecting early American antique furniture and glass for her future home . . . marriage this June gives her post-graduation plans a domestic slant . . .

MARTHA YAMASAKI

... Transfer from the University of Hawaii ... she is as happy and friendly as people from those islands traditionally are ... enjoys being in New York and loves studying at Barnard ... is a government major ... very much aware of and interested in the world around her ... derives particular pleasure from her favorite Spanish classes ...

AGNES YANOSHAT

... Has one of the most unusual hobbies recorded—prowling underground through the Scranton mines ... not at all explained by the fact that her major is psychology ... an expert swimmer, Agnes is a life saving and water safety instructor ... also likes to drive and play table-tennis ... transferred last year from Mount Saint-Vincent ...

JOANNE YOUNG

... A Vermonter by birth and inclination ... an ardent skier ... collects Tommy Dorsey records ... mad about New Orleans jazz, the Joe Mooney Quartet, and the Boston Pops ... ditto about cameras and her Columbia professor uncle ... Joanne's major is history ... she wants to be a school teacher but the local guess is that she'll marry first ...

CHARLOTTE ZACHRY

... A former Barnard student of two years' standing, Zach is now studying physical therapy at P & S ... enjoys dancing, especially because she is so good at it ... is at home on the tennis court where she hits a mean ball ... also fond of every other kind of sport and manages to excel in many ...

LENORE ZOHMAN

... Hopeful pre-med chem major ... inspired by the H₂S fragrance of the chem lab, the formaldehyde in zoö, and the blown fuses in physics ... sideline is music ... plays the piano by ear and notes ... now taking harmony "to find out what I am doing" ... enjoys school and vacations, commuting as well as living in the dorms ...

JEANNE ZWYGART

... Pert, witty, and always so jovial ... dotes on all sports except braving those overladen crosstown buses or the treacherous hills of Tuckahoe ... member of French Club ... likes classical music ... another psych major, Pouppee intends to travel widely before settling down to marriage and a career of public relations work in advertising ...

And Now . . .

for the younger set

Remember back when you were struggling with your A B C's . . . how proud you were to be able to read those first few words . . . how much you wanted to show off your newly acquired knowledge?

Children are amazed at the magic of words . . . the way the little letters can be grouped together to have meaning. Their first books are treasured possessions to be read over and over again.

For these young readers, the Bookstore has assembled a fine selection of children's books in Pooh's Corner . . . books that will bring hours of enjoyment to some youngster that you know.
